The headteacher of this school is Laura Jackson. This school is part of Ebor Academy Trust, which means other people in the trust also have responsibility for running the school. The trust is run by the chief executive officer, Gail Brown, and overseen by a board of trustees, chaired by Rachel Totton.

What is it like to attend this school?

There is a strong sense of family at this school. Pupils display the Christian values they have been taught. The school provides a warm and nurturing environment for pupils to succeed. Pupils are very happy and greet visitors with a smile. Pupils feel safe, and staff are tenacious in ensuring that they remain so.

Pupils make good progress. The curriculum is well designed, and pupils are taught by well-trained teachers. The school is still developing some aspects of the curriculum, and leaders know what needs to improve.

Pupils behave very well in lessons and are unfailingly polite. They show respect to adults and enjoy learning. Pupils have good relationships with teachers. Bullying is very rare and is swiftly dealt with if it occurs.

Pupils participate in a range of different clubs, such as Greek mythology, 'maths magicians', curling and choir. Pupils have opportunities to take on leadership responsibilities, such as membership of the caring squad, which supports other pupils and keeps the environment clean. Pupils proudly represent the school as part of the pupil parliament. They are helping to improve the school and have recently worked on providing personal reflection spaces around the school site.

What does the school do well and what does it need to do better?

The school has planned an ambitious and inclusive curriculum. Pupils study a broad range of subjects that prepare them well for secondary education. The curriculum is well constructed and sequenced logically. Important knowledge is broken down into digestible chunks, which helps pupils to learn new information. This allows pupils to build their knowledge and make progress. Pupils with special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND) are very well supported and fully included in lessons. Pupils with SEND have their needs quickly identified and receive appropriate support in lessons.

The school ensures that important 'sticky' knowledge is identified at the start of each topic. Pupils are assessed regularly to gauge how well they are acquiring this knowledge. In some lessons, teachers do not identify gaps in pupil's knowledge or understanding as well as they could. When this happens, teaching does not precisely address the gaps in knowledge that some pupils have.

Teachers use different techniques to help pupils retain knowledge. For example, lessons usually start with a 'memory lane' task that links previous learning to the current topic. However, in some lessons, work is not matched to pupils' prior knowledge and understanding. Elsewhere, sometimes pupils are not clear about what specific vocabulary means. This slows the progress that some pupils make through the curriculum.

The school has developed a strong culture of reading. Reading is celebrated and promoted at every opportunity. For example, classes are named after famous authors, and pupils can win raffle prizes for frequent reading. Pupils read each day and talk enthusiastically about the books they are reading. Pupils who are weaker at reading are very well supported. They receive additional reading time and intensive one-to-one interventions. As a result, these pupils rapidly make progress with their phonics knowledge and fluency.

The school has high expectations of behaviour and has established a culture of respect. Pupils are very well behaved in lessons. They are attentive and enjoy learning. They are polite, cheerful and respectful towards teachers and visitors. Most pupils attend school regularly, but there are some who do not. Leaders are not complacent and have plans to further improve the attendance of all pupils.

Pupils benefit from a well-structured programme of personal development. They are taught in age-appropriate ways about healthy relationships, how to keep themselves safe online, the meaning of consent and the changes they can expect during puberty. Pupils participate in engaging lessons that encourage debate and discussion. Pupils know and understand Christian values well. They are also taught about fundamental British values and different world faiths, although some pupils struggle to recall detailed knowledge of these. Pupils have opportunities to engage in a variety of clubs, extra-curricular activities and leadership positions.

Leaders have made rapid improvements to the school and have high ambitions for pupils. The trust provides the school with high-quality support, and staff are well trained for their roles. Staff enjoy working at the school and consider leaders to be mindful of their workload and well-being. Governors and trustees have a good understanding of the school and provide clear strategic leadership.

Safeguarding

The arrangements for safeguarding are effective.

What does the school need to do to improve?

(Information for the school and appropriate authority)

- In some subjects, the work set does not consistently match pupils' prior knowledge or support pupils to develop their subject-specific vocabulary. As a result, some pupils do not build knowledge from prior learning and commit new information into their long-term memory as well as they could. The school should ensure that the work set matches prior knowledge and that pupil's use of subject-specific vocabulary is developed.
- In some subjects, teachers do not identify gaps in pupils' knowledge and understanding. This means that teaching is not targeted at addressing these gaps in pupils' knowledge. The school should ensure that assessment is used consistently across the curriculum to identify gaps in pupils' knowledge and understanding.

How can I feed back my views?

You can use Ofsted Parent View to give Ofsted your opinion on your child's school, or to find out what other parents and carers think. We use information from Ofsted Parent View when deciding which schools to inspect, when to inspect them and as part of their inspection.

The Department for Education has further guidance on how to complain about a school.

Further information

You can search for published performance information about the school.

In the report, 'disadvantaged pupils' is used to mean pupils with special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND); pupils who meet the definition of children in need of help and protection; pupils receiving statutory local authority support from a social worker; and pupils who otherwise meet the criteria used for deciding the school's pupil premium funding (this includes pupils claiming free school meals at any point in the last six years, looked after children (children in local authority care) and/or children who left care through adoption or another formal route).

Information about this school

- The school has been part of Ebor Academy Trust since 2019.
- The school is federated with All Saints Church of England Infant Academy, located on the same site.
- All Saints Church of England Junior Academy converted to become an academy in 2019. When its predecessor school, All Saints Church of England Junior School, was last inspected by Ofsted, it was judged to require improvement overall.
- The headteacher has been in post for four years.
- The school does not use any alternative providers of education.
- The school last received a Statutory Inspection of Anglican and Methodist Schools in June 2017, where the school was judged to be good.

Information about this inspection

The inspectors carried out this graded inspection under section 5 of the Education Act 2005.

- Inspections are a point-in-time judgement about the quality of a school's education provision.
- This was the first routine inspection the school received since the COVID-19 pandemic began. Inspectors discussed the impact of the pandemic with the school and have taken that into account in their evaluation of the school.
- Inspectors met with the headteacher, other leaders, staff and pupils. They met with leaders from Ebor Academy Trust and with representatives from the Diocese of York.
- Inspectors carried out deep dives in these subjects: reading, science, mathematics, history, and design and technology. For each deep dive, inspectors discussed the curriculum with subject leaders, visited a sample of lessons, spoke to teachers, spoke to some pupils about their learning and looked at samples of pupils' work.
- Inspectors visited lessons and considered how the needs of disadvantaged pupils and pupils with SEND were addressed. They observed pupils at various times of the school day.
- To evaluate the effectiveness of safeguarding, the inspectors: reviewed the single central record; took account of the views of leaders, staff and pupils; and considered the extent to which the school has created an open and positive culture around safeguarding that puts pupils' interests first.
